JEFF KOONS AND BERNARDAUD COLLABORATION OF A GREAT COMPLEXITY IN THIS SEPCIFIC DESIGN ART-----Jeff Koons chose Bernardaud for his expertise. This project of great complexity has required all the skills and all the business modelers, designers and enamel of the company's workshops, as well as the implementation of new technology development to meet the demands of the artist. Balloon Dog is one of the most significant works of the famous Celebration series, inaugurated by Jeff Koons in the early 1990. The works of this series evoke certain times of the year (holidays and anniversaries), but also pay tribute to life cycle.

What else a colourful balloon, which has been given the instantly recognizable shape of a dog, to suggest gaiety of childhood holidays? In the eyes of the artist, it shaped balloon dog "speaks of the celebration, childhood, color and simplicity. But it is also a Trojan. This is a Trojan for the entire body of work." Explains Jeff Koons.-----THE DEPTH AND ARCHAIC

SCULPTURE OF THE BALOON DOG

Balloon Dog has the depth of an archaic sculpture. The original sculptures with this title are made of stainless steel precision polished mirror, covered with a transparent glaze blue, magenta, orange, red or yellow. Despite its three meters high and weighs a ton, no detail has been left out of the rendering of the shape Balloon Dog.-----

Including the rigorous demands of the artist, one of the most fascinating aspects of the art of Koons, is in the version in porcelain of Balloon Dog (Yellow) that simulates stainless steel mirror polished monumental sculpture thanks to its metallic yellow glaze and its fixation on a china plate in which it is reflected.
